FORT WORTH MUSEUM
SCIENCE AND HISTORY

Unleash Your Creative Genius with Artist David Zinn
Fort Worth Museum of Science and History to Host Chalk Artist

Fort Worth, TX - David Zinn has spent a dozen years creating his most enduring artworks in a medium that cannot be framed, sold or even preserved: sidewalk chalk. His installations appear as three-dimensional creatures incorporated into the real world and then disappear soon after, but their photos continue to receive popular acclaim all over the world in newspapers, blogs and social media. The Fort Worth Museum of Science and History is hosting a series of events with David Zinn from March 22 - 24 including a Celebrity Lecture and two workshops.

On the evening of March 22, Zinn will hold a lecture at the Museum to discuss how his art has connected him with the creative potential of people and places all over the world. Guests are invited to explore how Zinn makes the ordinary in our world extraordinary at this imaginative lecture. A dessert reception and book signing will be held prior to the lecture for guests to meet Zinn and buy his book, Temporary Preserves.

Guests can try their own hand at chalk art at the member workshop on March 23 or the public workshop on March 24. Zinn will show attendees how they can bring a sidewalk to life with a little bit of imagination and some chalk!

All events featuring David Zinn require ticket purchase. Learn more and buy tickets here.
